O'CLOCK YELLING FOR HILL.

Democrats Will Renominate Him-Unanimously.

Arrival of the Advance Guard in Buffalo This Morning.

What the Convention Will Probably Do | They Leave Early and in a Happy Mood for To-Morrow Afternoon.

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. BUFFALO, Sept. 11 .- The advance guards of the Democracy of the State have arrived and the hotel corridors are thronged with wellknown party men. There promises to be a larger attendance at the convention than was the crowds can be taken care of. The International Fair has brought crowds of strangers to the city, and now the Democratic pilgrims are pouring in by every train. The local Democratic Committee has ar-anticipated, and every one is wondering how cratic pilgrims are pouring in by every train. The local Democratic Committee has arranged for special trains for Niagara Falls, and hundreds of Democrats will have to go the Falls for hotel accommodations.

The convention will be called to order at noon to-morrow and it will probably be a very harmonious body. Gov. Hill will be unanimously renominated by acclamation. There is no opposition to him and no opponent has so far materialized. Lieut. Gov. Jones will also be renominated, and John Clinton Gray, who is now a Judge of the Court of Appeals by appointment, will be nominated for that Court.

The platform will not differ much from the platforms of 1885 and 1887. There may be a little change in the excise plank. It may be touched up to meet the suggestions of Gov. Hill and to follow his acts as Governor.

The delegates from the cities are opposed to a backdown on the excise question.

The Tammany Hall special arrived here at 9 o'clock this morning. The 300 braves looked tired. The reception they received at Troy was too much for them. They all say that the reception given them by the Trojans was the greatest demonstration of the kind they ever saw.

The Purroy Democrats are here in force, and are wearing immensegreen badges. The leaster's of the Purroy people want to get in the _ammany Hall list of delegates. The County Democracy delegates will arrive tonight. The Tammany Hall shouters are already yelling for David B, Hill.

The Tenth District Wigwamites are wearing Hill badges.

It looks as if George Raines, of Rochester, and Cady Herrick, of Albany, will be selected as temporary and permanent chairmen of the convention.

Col. Rice, Gov. Hill's private secretary, has arrived and is at the Genesce House.

Col. Rice, Gov. Hill's private secretary, Col. Rice, Gov. Hill's private secretary, has arrived and is at the Genesee House.

Inquiry elicits the fact that nearly one-half of the liquor and beer dealers of Buffalo are Republicans and that they are solid for Hill.

Mr. George Blair, the labor advocate, is hare. He has received a despatch from Denis Kearney stating that he intends stumping California for Cleveland on the Chinese Daniel Lockwood, who placed Cleveland a nomination for Sheriff, Mayor, Governor and for President in 1884, will probably make the speech in renominating Hill for Gover-nor. Gen. Pryor and Col. Fellows will prob-ably second the nomination.

MR. RULLMAN'S ROMANCE.

He Was Married on His Death-Bed to His Former Travelling Companion.

On the day of the funeral of Frederick Valentine Rullman, the ticket speculator who died at his home at Rye Neck, Sept. 1, there appeared a handsome, well-dressed who died at his home at kye keek, sept. I, there appeared a handsome, well-dressed woman of about thirty-three years of age, who proved herself by her marriage certificate to be the widow of Mr. Rullman.

The woman and her two sons, whom she said were Mr. Rullman's children, attended the funeral and have since remained in possession of the Rye Neck house.

The woman was formerly Aurelia Matyka.

Mr. Rullman met her sixteen years ago at Vienna, when he was abroad in theatrical business, and she afterwards travelled with him as his clerk. He married her Aug. 25, while he was on his sick bed, as an act of justice. His first wife had died about two months before. Miss Matyka would have waited a year, but it was found that Mr. Rullman could not live, and he hastened the marriage.

Mr. Rullman's will was filed for probate in the Surrogate's office to-day. It had been in Mr. Rullman's private vanit in the Lincoln Safe Deposit Vaults and was produced on order of Surrogate Ransom.

The income of the $100,000 estate is left to his wife, and after her death to the two children, Clotilde and Frederick. Mr. Rullman disinherits his daughter, Mrs. Ellen Miller, except in the improbable contingency that in case little Clotilde dies she shall have her share.

The Nantilus Club Regatta. On next Saturday afternoon the fourth annual regatts of the Nautilus Boat Club takes piace at the boat-house at Bay Ridge. The affair promises to be unusually successful. The races to be rowed to be unusually successful. The races to be rowed are single gifs senior, in which young Hettrick is entered; single gig junior, classes A and B; double gig, senior and junior; four-cared gig, senior and junior; eight-cared shell race, a special race between Thomas F. Crean and William Merrick, in singles, and a swimming race. The special feature is that the affair is a ladies' regatia. The Nautities say next Saturday's execut will be far ahead of their best previous efforts.

XX Bowlers First on Hand. William Etseman's bowling rooms, at 294 Bowery, were opened last week for the season. There was a gala time at the opening, which was cele-brated by the XX Howing Club, who were the first to roll the bail on the new alleys, which were put in during the summer.

The Gottam and Fhoenix clubs also played match states. Frank Fagan, manager for Mr. Riseman, has made arrangements for a bowling tournament, which will be held in a few weeks. Frizes valued at $500 will be offered to the contesting clubs.

MR. BENNETT SPEAKS

At Last the Old Broker Tells His Story.

But the Mystery of the Crime is Still Unsolved.

Attacked From Behind and Robbed of His Money.

Broker Daniel H. Bennett returned to onsciousness this morning, but the mystery which surrounded the murderous assault upon him at his home on Jersey Heights Saturday night remains apparently as impenetrable as over. He has made a statement, but says that he knows absolutely nothing of the assault.

An Evening World reporter was one of the earliest callers at the Bennett residence in Forrest street this morning and interviewed the son, Augustus, who has been suspected as the possible assailant of his father. The young man said that at about 4 o'clock this morning he awoke and went down to his father's room, where he found Roundsman McIntyre, of the Fifth Precinct, who had been detailed to watch at the old gentleman's bedside.

Soon after old Mr. Bennett awoke talkative and apparently as well mentally as before the then I remember everything, but can't tan't."

After this he fell asleep, waking at 6.50, fully conscious, and related his experience of Saturday in answer to his son and Roundaman McIntyre. He said:

"I left the office at 2 p. M. Saturday and came directly home. I spent the afternoon in the house and took supper here. Lucy was here. I went to bed at 9 o'clock."

"When I came into the house in the afternoon I left the outside vestibule door open, but the inside door was locked. I don't know whether I left my bedroom door open or not. I never lock it."

When told that he had been murderously assaulted, Mr. Bennett asked for his clothing and discovered the robbery of his watch and money.

He said that he had $40 in bills and $1.2

He said that he had $40 in bills and $1.25 in change, all in his pocketbook, and but $4 in bills and 40 cents in change was found.

There were several compartments in the pocketbook and young Bennett said that his father kept large bills in one and small bills and change in another. The thief, in his haste, he thought, had only taken the roll of large bills.

So well did Mr. Bennett feel this morning that he got up and took a bath and ate a Shortly before 8 o'clock last evening Shortly before 8 o'clock last evening a coach drew up to the handsome residence of Justice Weed, on Henderson street, and from it two gentlemen and a lady alighted. When the Justice met the party in the drawing-room, he recognized his old friend, Mr. Wolbert, but hardly found strength to shake his hand when he learned that the old gentleman wished to be married to the blushing young girl at his side.

be married to the blushing young girl at his side.

Mr. Wolbert introduced his other companion as Mr. L. H. Sage, of Hackensack, and nervously asked the Justice to hurry the ceremony. The Justice accordingly hurried.

The bride gave her name as Mary Eliza McCormack, of 267 York street. She blushed prettily as the process of tying the knot continued. As soon as the last word left the lips of the Justice, Mr. Wolbert clasped his bride in his arms and imprinted a resounding smack upon her rosy lips.

"I suppose I, too, may have the usual privilege?" remarked the Justice.

"May it please the Court," answered Mr. Wolbert in alarm, "your last words were 'whom God hath joined together let no man put asunder.' If you kiss my wife you might do that, you know."

The Justice lost his kiss, and the bride and groom drove to the Academy of Music to see a play with the title of "Drifting Apart," in which a young wife deserts her loving old husband.

In the third act the Chairman of the Democratic clubs is said to have wept aloud.

Can This Be Gen. Harrison's Letter of Acceptance?

Has the "Chinese News" Outwitted Its Caucasian Contemporaries?

Can It Be a Republican Scheme to Secure the Celestial Vote?

The following remarkable publication apears this week in the Chinese News, edited by that astute Mongolian, Wong Chin Foo. Its appearance at this time, directly after the publication of President Cleveland's letter of coeptance, is calculated to arouse a flutter in the breast of the Republicans. Who knows but what it is Candidate Harrison's long delayed letter of acceptance? The Republican have been hinting about a coup d'état for some time past. What more novel than that Gen. Harrison should by a sharp flank movement like this overwhelm all the critics of his record on the Chinese question, and by one masterly stroke of hieroglyphics capture the entire Chinese vote?

Moreover, the undaunted student of Chinese will find in these characters something more than the ordinary laundry accounts. In the third line, for instance, he will discover the Chinese equivalent for "Presidential campaign," and just below a phrase that looks very much like the Republican candidate as he is represented by the wicked Democratic cartonists. Let the intelligent readers of The Evenina World, familiar with the intricacies of the situation, look into these things for themselves, and, exercising their rights as American citizens, form their own unbiassed opinion.

The expert Chinese editor of The Evenina World is, moreover, devoting his best energies to the full solution of this political nystery, and by to-morrow he hopes to throw some light upon the subject. Meanwhile what is to prevent anybody saking:

The old man had been out of employment some months, and was supported by his married daughter, Mrs. Stretchstrom, who inherited $15,000 a short time ago.

It is supposed he committed suicide because he did not want to be dependent on her any longer. Coroner Nugent will hold the inquest.

The Dancing Teachers.

The dancing teachers in annual convention in this city approved the combination waits and adopted changes in many other dances this morning. They will adjourn to-morrow.

Capt. Andrews and His Dory Are Back Again.

The Hardy Mariner's Story of His Perilous Trip.

Next Year, He Says, He'll Surely Do the Whole Passage.

Capt. William A. Andrews and his cockleshell, the Dark Secret, have turned up, the hardy captain being alive and well.

Skipper Andrews walked into THE EVEN.

ING WORLD office to-day as brown as a berry

THE DARK SECRET.

He drew smoke through a black cigar, and threw one leg over the arm of a chair as unconcernedly as though he had been a daily visitor for the past three months.

He came in on the Norwegian bark Nor this morning, and his dory lies at anchor at this morning, and his dory lies at anchor at Quarantine.

"Well, you see," said the skipper, "I started from Point of Pines June 8, and I had been just two months and a ay on the little boat, all a'one. I spoke twenty-two years a during that time, but saw only four sails during the last four weeks.

"I hadn't tasted a morsel of warm food nor drank a cup of hot coffee in all that time years my alcohol stove cot juli of water. I or drank a cup of hot coffee in all that time 'cause my alcohol stove got full of water. I took 100 bottles of hygeia distilled water with me, but it was all gone. My fat pork was gone, too.

"It was latitude 46.18 and longitude 39.50, about fifty-live miles more than half way across the ocean, when on that Sunday morning, Aug. 19, I spoke the Nor and asked her captain for pork and water. He was willing enough, but he looked me over and declared I was a darn fool if I didn't come aboard and come back to New York.

"We looked my craft over. She was 14 feet 9 inches long, 5 feet wide and 2 feet deep. We found her bottom badly covered with barnacles and see grass, and the whole outfit was in a bad way, so I didn't need much coaxin'to get me to abaudon the trip and rectum 'receilly as I had had some trouble coaxin' to get me to abaudon the trip and re-turn, 'specially as I had had some trouble with sharks and whales."

turn, 'specially as I had had some trouble with sharks and whales."

"Sharks and whales."

exclaimed a half-dozen reporters all in a breath—or, rather, out of breath.

"Well there was one morning when I turned out," said the skipper, pulling hard on his cigar. "You see, I lost my drag—a drag is a sea anchor. It is a canvas, bag holding about a barrel of water. It's the best thing to keep the dory from drifting. Only it and a dory, 'cause a dory is flat-bottomed. When I turned out that morning I found about a half dozen sharks nosing around the boat. I didn't like that kind of company, so I tried to get away. But three big fellows, 6 or 7 feet long, staved along. I threw 'em something to eat—a can of lobster and another of lambs' tongues and another of sardines. I'd get tired of enting that sort of ration.

"But they had their stomachs set for me and couldn't be satiafied, so I gave 'em a yacht salute. That's a big cracker with a report like a six-pounder.

"I put the cracker in a lobster can. The biggest fellow saw the red label and tried to swallow it. Just then the salute went off, and there was a scattering of shark meat, I tell you. The others fell to and atchim up, and I got away.

"I'm all right, and I'll go her next year.

ting started on account of adverse winds."
The captain of the Nor makes the following tatement:
This is to certify that Sunday, Aug. 19, I spoke the American boat Dark Secret, Capt. William A. Andrews, in mid ocean; his outfit was worn out and used up; that the boat's bottom was very foul with barnacles one inch and grass two luches long, which, in my opinion, was sufficient reason for shandoning his voyage.
